Biography

Prof.Dr. Aysen Gargili Keles, who graduated from Istanbul University Faculty of Veterinary Medicine received her PhD from I.U. Institute of Health Sciences, Parasitology Department. She worked as research assistant and associate professor between 1989-2000 in I.U. Faculty of Veterinary Medicine. She worked as an associate professor and full professor at Cerrahpaşa Medical Faculty between 2001-2008. Gargili Keleş, who joined Marmara University in 2009, has 9 TUBITAK projects (1001, 1007, short-term and bilateral cooperation projects), 5 EU and 3 EU, 1 NIH / NBTC and 2 CRDF Global funded projects. She has 44 articles published in journals indexed in SCI/ SCI-E lists and numerous papers presented at international / national congresses. In her academic life, Gargili Keleş worked as a postdoc fellow and guest scientist at the following institutions; Gifu University School of Medicine in Japan, International Center for Genetic Engineering and Biotechnology in India, Ludwig Maximillien Universität-Tropical Diseases Institute in Germany and University of Texas Medical Branch in the USA. She has duties in national and international advisory boards on her primary research field; vectors, vector-borne diseases and epidemiology. She is a member of the World Health Organization's international CCHF outbreak monitoring group. She is one of the writers and editors of "The effects of climate change on health in Turkey" report prepared by WHO. She is the founder and director of the Biosafety and Biosecurity Master of Science Program established within the M.U. Institute of Health Sciences. She is editor of the JOHESAM, co-editor of the Clinical and Experimental Health Sciences and Turkish Parasitology Journal. She is member of the European Biosafety Association, Turkish Society for Microbiology, and Turkish Parasitology Association. She is currently working as the vice director of M.U. Institute of Health Sciences and the head of Basic Health Sciences at Health Sciences Faculty.
